He cannot recoilect my taking away the bonds, but says he was not in the habit of keeping bonds of a free bank as an investment, and felt it his disty to give up the bonds when the notes of any bank were returned him. It is hardly possible that I would be a secretary, whose services be considered young secretary, whose services be considered. What do you think of any body writing such which brings so many memories to the heart, turified him. It is hardly possible that I would have returned so large an amount of notes without taking up my bonds. It is, however, unfortunate for me that Col. Luttrell's recollection is indistinct on this point. He, however, states that he gave me $50,000 of nay issues and returned me about the same amount in the issues I gave him. Does not this second for the 101 bonds of $1,000 each, reported in my July statement?

I asked Mr. Morton if he did not go to the box of the Exchange Bank and take out 41 bonds of $1,000 each, in the absence of the Cumptroller, on an order I had given him for that amount? He replied in the negative.
